Results-Based Accountability

Results-Based Accountability™ is a disciplined way of thinking and acting to improve entrenched and complex social problems. RBA is also used by organizations to improve the effectiveness of their programs.

Developed by Mark Friedman and described in his book Trying Hard is Not Good Enough, RBA uses a data-driven, decision-making process to help communities and organizations get beyond talking about problems to taking action to solve problems.

RBA starts with ends and works backward, towards means. The population versus performance distinction is what separates RBA from all other frameworks.

Why RBA?

- Clearly States the Issue, Our Future Desired State & Target Population
- Aligns Macro-Level Issues & Measurements w/ Micro-Level Planning, Execution Measurements
- Incorporates Effective Strategies Known to Make a Difference
- Includes Partnerships and Clearly Defines Your Role and How to Measure Your Effort

WHAT IS THE COMMUNITY RESULT THAT WE ARE TRYING TO ACHIEVE (RESULTS)

In our target area, what do we ultimately want to achieve as an organization/program? What is the desired future state? What is the core issue that our community and organizations are dealing with currently?

WHAT POPULATION ARE WE CONCERNED ABOUT (TARGET POPULATION)

What populations should we target and what condition of well-being do we want for them? What are effective strategies to reach this target population?

HOW DO WE MEASURE THESE CONDITIONS & HOW ARE WE DOING AS A COMMUNITY (INDICATORS)

How should we gauge the current condition of the population (BIG P) that we are most concerned about (above)? Also, how are we doing on these most important measures (trend data)? Do we know baseline data and/or forecast data that helps us understand our current state or condition on this issue?

WHAT IS THE STORY BEHIND THE NUMBERS (ROOT CAUSES)

What are the key factors that contribute to the current conditions? What are some of the contributing factors that are supporting progress and what are some of the restricting factors that are preventing progress? What do you believe are the root (or core) problems?

WHO ARE THE PARTNERS WE INCLUDE OR SHOULD INCLUDE (COLLABORATORS)

What partners do we need to include to help improve conditions for our target population? What are the most effective practices to maintain partnerships?

WHAT STRATEGIES WORK TO TURN THE CURVE (EVIDENCE-BASED STRATEGIES)

What evidence-based strategies that we have learned about or know of that are proven to help “turn the curve” on the key indicators that we consider important. What are some the most impactful low-cost, no-cost solutions that are proven to turn the curve?

WHAT DO WE DO (PROGRAM LOGIC MODEL)

What is unique about our organization and our ability to address this issue? What should we do as an organization to drive change in this area? Based on our available resources, what role will we play, what will be our activities, what are our leading indicators of success (benchmarks), and how will we measure our impact on our target population (small p).

Basic Components of a Program Logic Model – Kellogg Logic Model Guide

- 1. Factors are resources and/or barriers, which potentially enable or limit program effectiveness.
Enabling protective factors or resources may include funding, existing organizations, potential collaborating partners, existing organizational or interpersonal networks, staff and volunteers, time, facilities, equipment, and supplies.
- 2. Activities are the processes, techniques, tools, events, technology, and actions of the planned program. These may include products – promotional materials and educational curricula; services – education and training, counseling, or health screening; and infrastructure – structure, relationships, and capacity used to bring about the desired results.
- 3. Outputs are the direct results of program activities. They are usually described in terms of the size and/or scope of the services and products delivered or produced by the program. They indicate if a program was delivered to the intended audiences at the intended “dose.” A program output, for example, might be the number of classes taught, meetings held, or materials produced and distributed; program participation rates and demography; or hours of each type of service provided.
- 4. Outcomes are specific changes in attitudes, behaviors, knowledge, skills, status, or level of functioning expected to result from program activities and which are most often expressed at an individual level.
- 5. Impacts are organizational, community, and/or system level changes expected to result from program activities, which might include improved conditions, increased capacity, and/or changes in the policy arena.

Enhanced Program Logic Model

The most competitive organizations, programs and proposals clearly state the organization's resources needed in addition to the leadership capacity and its ability to leverage support from strategic partners, either in-kind or financial.

Enhanced Program Logic Model

Enhanced Program Logic Model

Outputs measure program execution and are direct products of program activities.

Outputs measure “evidenced-based” program activities and/or interventions that are critical to achieving the desired change in the target population.

Outputs are important leading indicators of program execution, not program impact. Without proper execution, it is highly unlikely that a program will achieve impact. Therefore, outputs can measure if an organization is on track with its intended plan and/or strategy.

Enhanced Program Logic Model

Outcomes are the measurable change in the target population as a direct result of the program activity. Short-term outcomes can be “leading” indicators of longer-term outcomes. For example, if a school increases its attendance rates in the short-term (weekly), they are more likely to improve their student reading scores in the long-term (year).

S.M.A.R.T. Objectives

S.M.A.R.T. Objectives

Specific	Measurable	Attainable	Relevant	Time-Bound
Make sure your goals are focused and identify a tangible outcome. Without the specifics, your goal runs the risk of being too vague to achieve. Being more specific helps you identify what you want to achieve. You should also identify what resources you are going to leverage to achieve success.	You should have some clear definition of success. This will help you to evaluate achievement and also progress. This component often answers how much or how many and highlights how you'll know you achieved your goal.	Your goal should be challenging, but still reasonable to achieve. Reflecting on this component can reveal any potential barriers that you may need to overcome to realize success. Outline the steps you're planning to take to achieve your goal.	This is about getting real with yourself and ensuring what you're trying to achieve is worthwhile to you. Determining if this is aligned to your values and if it is a priority focus for you. This helps you answer the why.	Every goal needs a target date, something that motivates you to really apply the focus and discipline necessary to achieve it. This answers when. It's important to set a realistic time frame to achieve your goal to ensure you don't get discouraged.

Types of Objectives

Process Objective

- The activities/services/strategies that will be delivered as part of implementing the program.

Outcome Objective

- Intended impact or specific results of the program.

Impact Objective

- Benefits or outcomes for targeted populations post-funding.

Developing Process Objectives

Process Objectives - The activities/services/strategies that will be delivered as part of implementing the program.

By December 31, 2022, Organization XYZ will provide 20 African American, fourth grade youth, who attend School XXX, with 400 hours of math tutoring, as measured by student tutoring session sign in sheets.

Developing Outcome Objectives

Intended impact or specific results of the program.

- What benefits does the project have for the target group, and what changes is it intended to bring about?
- These can be changes in knowledge, awareness, attitudes, skills, etc.

Example

By December 31, 2022, 95% of youth who received math tutoring will show a 25% increase in their math grade, as measured by student grade reports.

Developing Impact Objectives

- Focused and reasonable statement about the desired long-term impact of your program.
  - These objectives are closely linked to the organization's vision.

Example

By June 30, 2023, School XXX will report a 20% increase in their aggregate ISTEP Math scores, as measured by comparison of 2022 ISTEP Math scores to 2023 ISTEP Math scores.

What is Project Evaluation?

Project evaluation is the process of gathering data about a specific program to help make informed decisions about that project.

Project evaluation focuses on inputs from the participants and how the activity affected them or brought any change in them.

Options for Program Evaluation

- Data Tracking
- Surveys
- Focus Groups
- Pre-post Tests
- Interviews

Type of Question	Appropriate Tools
How many/ how much of something (time, people, services)	Track totals, averages, and percentages
Whether population has learned something (knowledge, skills)	Conduct pre-post tests
How a population feels/ experiences something	Conduct surveys, interviews, and focus groups

Project Evaluation Tools – What are they?

What is data tracking?

Data tracking is a way to keep an eye on how your program is running by storing measures that are pulled at certain moments and comparing those measures over time.

What are Pre-post tests?

Pre-post tests are a way to measure whether your population knows more about something, or is better able to do something, as a result of participating in your program.

What are surveys, interviews and focus groups?

Surveys, interviews and focus groups are used to gather information that is harder to quantify - things like feelings, experiences, and perceptions. All three are built upon asking people questions about themselves.

Why is Project Evaluation Important?

- Helps you understand how effective you are in reaching your stated goals
- Provides an opportunity course-correct as necessary – before you've expended a ton of resources into the wrong approach.
- Helps streamline your program delivery and avoid mission drift

Session Recap

- I. Proposal Components
- II. Knowing Who Cares
  - a. Do your research!
- III. Creating a Compelling and Engaging Story
- IV. Developing Your Objectives
  - a. Process
  - b. Outcome

Responding a Grant Opportunity

Keep these points in mind when developing an interesting grant proposal:

- Why should the funder be interested in this project?
  - How is this work beneficial to the funding organization and the community?
- What is the impact of the work your organization is doing?
  - How does the success show up in community wide outcomes?
  - Why is this impact important?
  - How do you measure that success?
- What is your track record of success?
  - How do we know your project/program is working?
    - Is there a client success story you could share in your grant proposal?
    - Has the project met the intended outcomes? How do you know?

Practice Writing Process Objectives

- The activities/services/strategies that will be delivered as part of implementing the program.

By (SPECIFIC DATE), Organization XYZ will provide (TARGET POPULATION), with (# OF SESSIONS, HOURS OF SERVICE, ETC.,), as measured by (HOW WILL YOU DOCUMENT SERVICE PROVIDED).

Practice Writing Outcome Objectives

- Intended effect of the program in the target population or result of a program.

By (SPECIFIC DATE), (TARGET AUDIENCE) who (WHAT DOES YOUR PROGRAM PROVIDE) will show a _____% (INCREASE/DECREASE/REDUCTION) in their (WHAT CHANGE WILL WE SEE), as measured by (HOW WILL YOU ASSESS PROGRAM IMPACT).

Practice Writing Impact Objectives

- Focused and reasonable statement about the desired long-term impact of your program.
  - These objectives are closely linked to the organization's vision.

By (SPECIFIC DATE), (THE COMMUNITYWIDE RECIPIENT OF THIS CHANGE) will report a _____% (INCREASE/DECREASE/REDUCTION) in (WHAT WILL BE THE CHANGE SEEN), as measured by comparison of (COMMUNITY WIDE RESULTS TO WHICH YOU ARE COMPARING YOUR RESULTS) as measured by (HOW WILL YOU ASSESS COUNTYWIDE IMPACT).

Reasons Grant Proposals are NOT Funded

1. Typos!
2. Not following instruction in the RFP (Request For Proposal).
3. Not Answering the questions in the RFP.
4. You have not established a relationship with the funder.
5. Your proposal does not have clear objectives, specific timelines, or a budget.
6. You are not following their specific guidelines or deadlines.
7. You make stuff up, and the reviewer knows it!
8. Your project description is too vague.
9. The grantor does not see your proposed project as viable.
10. Your organization does not have enough experience.
11. Your needs statement is not compelling enough.
12. You are asking for too much money.
13. You are not submitting to the correct funding agency or are submitting the wrong type of project that is not within their funding focus areas.

Outcome vs. Process Evaluation Tips

Outcome Evaluation	Process Evaluation
Refers to the evaluation of the result of the program implemented to produce change.	Refers to the evaluation of the process or course of the program while its being conducted for producing a change.
It helps the stakeholders to see how the program achieved its required outcome or not.	It helps the stakeholders to see how the program was achieved.
It only focuses on outcomes and how the program impacted the participants.	It helps to figure out how the structure and supporting programs develop with time.
The focus is mostly the outcome and not the implementation of the program.	The focus of process evaluation is the services and resources provided by the program.

Project Evaluation Tips

- Did the program produce intended changes in or have unintended consequences for knowledge, behavior, attitudes, or feelings that are the immediate result of participation in activities?
- Did the program produce intended changes or have unanticipated effects on behaviors, practices, actions, or choices.
- Did the program produce intended changes or have unanticipated consequences for conditions affecting persons, organizations, or society?
- How does the program compare to others designed to address the same conditions in terms of effectiveness and efficiency?
- Was the value of producing outcomes at the level achieved worth the resources invested in the program?

Do Your Homework!

- Is there alignment between your program and their funding priorities?
- What is their funding cycle and limits?
- Who and what have they funded in the past?
- Do they offer public grant info sessions?
- Know who the grant managers are?
- Are there special funding protocols you should know?
- Is this a philanthropic or government (i.e., city, state, feds) funding opportunity?
- Is it a grant funded or reimbursement entity? One-time or multi-year?
- Know your target group(s), the best practices and gaps in the system.
- Speak to program sustainment beyond funder investment.
- Know the other players in the field of work and consider collaborations.
- Have electronic presence or nicely developed electronic collateral available.
- Have a data collection process for performance evaluation and improvements.
- Make sure the proposal is grammatically correct and the math adds up.
- Do submit it on-time.

Build Relationships

- Know the funding managers and portfolio leads.
- Reach out to have a conversation about your mission alignment.
- Consider the best time to meet with a funder (i.e. between grant cycles).
